Guess What? Woman's Club Members Don't Talk Enough

Emily Kimbrough, co-author of "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay" and one of the country's most popular lecturers, said today that there's too little talking and too much lecturing at women's clubs.

Acknowledging that "women's clubs have become one of the most important factors in the world today," the author complains that "American women's club audiences have become the best listeners in the world, but they have lost the habit of speaking up."

Miss Kimbrough expresses her views in the House Beautiful magazine. In four years of lecturing, she writes, "I have not had questions asked on more than four occasions, and I have never had more than two questions asked on any occasion... It must be, then, that American women's club audiences are 'cooled.' Emphasizing her esteem for women's clubs in general, the author says: "There is no aspect of government, I venture to say, either local or national that has not been influenced by these magnificently organized groups."

Seaside Rancho

By Mrs. Evelyn Hyder

There have been many birthdays celebrated this week among the small fry. Bobby Lawrence invited his guests to a theater party, where they saw two pictures, one a Tarzan and the other a Tim Holt cowboy movie. After the show, they returned to the Lawrence home for ice cream and cake. Nine little guests helped him celebrate his tenth birthday.

Bill Gravlin of Seaside Heights was eight years old Sunday. His guests were requested to wear their old clothes so that they could ride his horse.

Earl Rogers, also of the Heights, celebrated his sixth birthday Monday afternoon with many guests present for the occasion.

Little Linnae Knouse was seven years old last Saturday and four of her friends were present at a birthday dinner in her honor.

Mrs. W. J. Morgan of Santa Cruz has spent the week with her sister, Mrs. Florence Wheeler. She was accompanied by her year and a half old son, Timmy. They plan to return the end of this week.

Our PTA program last Thursday evening was presented with quite a twist. The men gave their version of a typical meeting, complete with the reading of the minutes, caricatured as only a group of men could. Wearing their new spring bonnets, they brought the meeting to order with an oversized mallet and continued even to the "refreshment" plans for the next meeting. Following this, a few skits were presented which also drew a lot of laughs from the audience.

Election of officers was held also (seriously) and those elected were: president, Mrs. Raymond Hole; first vice president, Mrs. H. Douglas Horn; second vice president, Mrs. Fredrick
